Gender Identities

Gender identities are very personal and vary from person to person. The information below is simply a general guide to some LGBT community terms. When dealing with these terms it is important to remember that gender identity and sexuality are independent of each other. Some of these terms can be used in a derogatory way and care must be used when speaking to someone about their gender identity. It is always best practice to ask the person which terms they prefer

Transgender

A person whose gender identity is different than assigned at birth.

Hermaphrodite

A person with both male and female genitals.

Agender

Agender is a term which can be literally translated as 'without gender'. It can be seen either as a non-binary gender identity or as a statement of not having a gender identity.

Intersex

A person who is born with characteristics or genitalia that are neither male or female.

Pangender

Pangender is a non-binary gender experience which refers to a wide multiplicity of genders that can (or not) tend to the infinite (meaning that this experience can go beyond the current knowledge of genders).

Trigender

A person who's gender identity changes between male, female and third gender.

Two-spirit

A Native American term for gender queer individuals within their communities.

Gender Non-Binary

A gender identity structure that embraces a rainbow of genders instead of just male and female.

Transsexual

A person who emotionally and psychologically feels that they belong to the gender opposite to their birth assignment.

Neutrois

A person who's does not identify with gender and often feel that they fall neutrally between male and female.

Androgyny

Is the combination of masculine and feminine characteristics. Sexual ambiguity may be found in fashion, gender identity, sexual identity, or sexual lifestyle.

Demiboy

A demiboy is someone whose gender identity is only partly male, regardless of their assigned gender at birth.

Demigirl

A demigirl is someone whose gender identity is only partly female, regardless of their assigned gender at birth.
